Hi Eric.

I have gone through the Bank monitoring report a second time and have no additional comments beyond what the State has already provided. I did notice that the Plainwell Impoundment cross sections indicate some erosion, specifically T3N, T3S, T4N, T4S, T5S, T9N, T10N, T10S, and T12N however the report does acknowledge the erosion is occuring and indicates stable banks with additional monitoring and evaluation for 2012. I will await the 2012 report to evaluate if any additional comments will be necessary for these areas.

Thank you,

Sam.

"Hritsuk, Eric"

Thanks Sam We will review these comments: U 05/15/2012 03:23 47 PM

Thanks Sam.

We will review these comments. USEPA has additional comments, correct?

Good luck with NATO preparations. It's going to be an interesting weekend in our city.

Garry and Eric,

Here are the comments I received from MDEQ on the 2011 Bank Monitoring Report. In the interest of time I am providing these to you so you can begin your review as I finish my review of the comments as well. I am currently dealing with many NATO Summit preparations and will have limited time to review these comments in the short term. I will follow up with you later this month to discuss. Thank you.

Sam,

I assume you still haven't received comments from MDEQ?

We are starting to work on the 2012 Report and would like to incorporate comments on the 2011 report.

Thanks,

Eric

Eric,

I am waiting for comments from Paul on this report. He is not sure of the timing of when he will get me his comments. I will continue to try and get something from him so I can give you consolidated comments as soon as possible. Thanks.
